DISCUSSION LEADERS

Claude Bowles, President, Central Labor Union, Lake Geneva; Max A. Freschl, Vice-President, Holeproof Hosiery Company; John M. Gaus, Department of Political Science, University of Wisconsin; F. E. Gastrow, President, Wisconsin Council of Carpenters; Harold M. Groves, Don D. Lescohier and Selig Perlman, Department of Economics, University of Wisconsin; Joseph A. Padway, Counsel, State Federation of Labor; Samuel Sigman, Attorney, Appleton; Harold E. Steele, International Vice-President, American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers, and others.

Each session of the Institute will be two hours in length. The first half hour will be given over to the speaker. His talk will be followed by five-minute criticisms and comments from several experts. The meeting will then be thrown open for general discussion in which all are urged to join.

Headquarters for the Institute will be the Theta Delta Chi House, 22 Langdon street, where some of the students in the Summer School for Workers live. Guests of the Institute are welcome to use the living-rooms, telephones, bathing beach and pier, and the dressing rooms which will be set aside for both women and men guests who wish to swim.

A few rooms are available at the Wisconsin Memorial Union, Park and Langdon streets, which also offers cafeteria and tea room service. "Lex Vobiscum," a private dining room adjoining the tea room, is reserved for Institute guests throughout the week-end.

A swimming party will be held at the Theta Delta Chi pier, 22 Langdon street, at 4:30 Saturday afternoon, followed by a buffet supper at 6 o'clock on the lawns of this and the Alpha Phi house adjoining, where the whole student body customarily eats. The charge will be 65 cents. Please make reservations Friday with Genevieve Townsend, the hostess.
